Called Pilotte, the sneaker shop bills itself as "a group of friends," and right now they're shaking things up with their first-ever collaboration with Tokyo's Japanese luxury brand, Tennen. The footwear collaboration is a first-of-its-kind venture between the pair, and the teal-tinted silhouettes are a stunner. The sneaks are not only versatile but they're also exceptionally comfortable and are rated at a 4.5 on the Tom's Club-standard comfort scale. Accentuated with a bright lime green, the brand's signature 'T' is rendered on the sidewalls of the sneaker. Perhaps best of all, these kicks come with a decidedly Parisian feel and, as we mentioned, these retro kicks are built with a robust rubber outsole that will stand up to wear and tear.

While the sneakers are the only thing that's been announced, the pair say there is more to come. So, yes, we guess they've got the spirit of today, but we're guessing something big is coming their way soon. Can't wait to see more. Nubioku Pilotte Founded: 2015 Releases: Oct 16, 2016 Available: On-line and at Pilotte's brick-and-mortar storefronts.This article is about fake proof of articles. It should not be confused with a real proof of article. A fake proof of an article is a version of a proof of an article that deliberately contains incorrect statements. Fake proofs are used to develop a concept that is otherwise ill defined, such as counterfeit money, a pure mathematical entity, or a world without free will. A pure proof is one that does not contain any incorrect statements. This is not an uncommon type of false proof. A common type of fake proof is an unsound proof. An unsound proof has a false theorem or lemma, but it also contains verifiable steps. A false statement may have a legitimate proof that can be identified through a check of the 6d1f23a050
